Description

I am not one to write a letter when I don't agree with something I have seen on television. I simply make a choice not to watch certain programs if I do not like the content or the advertisements that play during commercials. However, I felt that tonight's half-time show during Superbowl 57 was so egregious that I felt compelled to write. I actually did not watch the show initially due to several tasteless half-time shows in the recent past (so-called wardrobe malfunctions, offensive crotch shots, etc.). I was expecting lude behavior and/or lyrics but I was surprised, more like shocked, when Rihanna sang lyrics about strippers going up and down on a pole and something about "bands make your girl go down" referring to oral sex, while all of the dancers laid on the platforms and thrust their hips in the air. Are you kidding me?! I only tuned in for that piece because my wife wanted to see what the half-time show was like (I DVR'd the game). And I did not watch any more. That was more than enough for me in just the 20 seconds I watched it.

You know that over 100+ million people watch that half-time show and that millions of children are tuned in as well, especially those who are in attendance at the game in the stadium. You cannot deny that you know what type of material will be presented at these shows. To allow this type of tasteless vulgarity to permeate what used to be the greatest sport in the world loved by billions of people is a shame. I am appalled that the NFL condones and endorses such programming and that the FCC does not hold people accountable for these decisions. Some may say it is art and therefore should be protected BUT even "art" has warnings and limitations. We don't allow minors to buy pornography (legally) and we used to put warning labels on albums and cassettes regarding lyrics and content (I know I am dating myself) so why is the NFL allowed to present this type of material to the public, especially when minors are present? I know they can do much better than this.

For the NFL to say that they signed a contract with a company/producer/whomever or whatever and that they have no control over what they bring to the table and deliver during the half-time show is preposterous. If that is the case, they need to find someone who can negotiate better contracts so as to maintain some form of command and control of what can and what cannot be presented during the half-time shows. If people want to see that kind of stuff, they can watch it on YouTube or MTV or some other media form.

Please consider that of the 100+ million who watch the NFL games and specifically the Super Bowl, there are tens of millions (of families) who would rather see something else. I truly hope the NFL will rise above the current culture's disastrous vision for the future and take a stand for more virtuous and family-friendly productions. And, if they don't, the FCC will do something about it. Our young people get bombarded on all fronts with all kinds of negativity and vulgarity; they don't need it from America's most beloved sport as well.

Thank you for taking the time to read this. I am not judging you by any means with this letter – I am simply appealing to you, as the FCC, to hold the NFL and all involved accountable for lewd and vulgar programming. Thank you.

RE: Rihanna's halftime show

In 1972 Woody Allen directed a film, Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Sex* (*But Were Afraid to Ask). Around 1975 or so this comedy sex film was shown at the drive-in, then located in Russell Co., KY. I never forgot it, specially the white uniforms worn by the sperm characters.

Rihanna's halftime show took me by surprise, to say the least... however, the obvious Woody Allen factor was NOT lost on me. Every one of you that watched, saw the sexuality from the latex bra to the crotch grabbing and her pregnancy. I have to wonder how all the dancing sperm characters got pass censors to be aired?

At this point my TV will be off during during future halftime show to protect my children from the absolute neglect the people organizing these performances are showing. I thought after the good judgement shown last year, we were finally going to see a production showing an understanding families watch the superbowl. I was wrong. Is it really that impossible to sing without touching your vagina? Rihanna is classless and she was classless before the performance so you should have known. Next year Google "good role models" before booking.

It's unfortunate we can't guarantee to watch an entertaining show without having to watch out for it getting out of line. Superbowl is an American tradition with kids and adults together watching and enjoying the game, commercial, and supposed to be show. Par for the course to see a show turn inappropriate knowing families are tuning in and I have to turn it off to not allow my kids to see Rihanna grabbing her crotch and lude gestures and lyrics later. Turned it off as the male dancers were acting like they were doing sexual dancing for her to hop on. I will say we turned it off and never turned it back on, ruined the night for wanting to watch the game. Will not buy into mainstream media garbage like that, which is unfortunately the new daily now.

I was very disappointed in the content of the half time show. Some of the sexually suggestive gestures and dancing by both the artist Rhiannon and her supporting performers has no place during a prime-time broadcast watched by millions of people both in the US and abroad, with many being minors. Something needs done and these actions need to start being controlled and reeled in and dealt with! Never complained before but i have never been so embarrassed sitting with my family. Description

How can the FCC allow FOX 32 to show on national TV a performer grab her crotch multiple times and each of the backup performers grab their crotch multiple times and show it on national television? When Janet Jackson had a "wardrobe malfunction" she was banned from performing at a Superbowl Halftime show ever again but the performance shown on FOX 32 on Feb. 13, 2023 was fine for children and young adults to see on TV? Rhianna's performance and her dancers' performance was disgusting and was not appropriate to be seen by a younger audience.

Description

The disgusting performance of Rihanna and her approx. 75 dancers at the SuperBowl Sunday evening was Very close to pornography. Not just the star gyrating,

Touching her private areas (front and rear of her body)

Repeatedly And having her dancers following her gestures repeatedly during a 13 minute performance in front of millions, either in the stands or around the world, is shocking for Apple Music and the NFL to allow.

Why is the FCC allowing these performers to choreograph & perform such sexual gyrations on national tv in this country.

These comments can also be applied to Sam Smith's Satanic Ritual performance as well as others on The Grammy Awards show one week ago.

Is this all about allowing Apple, NFL and other major corporations to allow performers their disgusting behavior in the media for their potential millions of dollars in profits. Your allowance of these behaviors in the media is also disgusting. American public expect s more from your government office.

I was so offended by the actions of Rhianna and the male dancers, I had to turn off the game within 10 minutes of her performance and did not return to the game because I was so upset. I do not want to see a woman groping herself (more than once) and then licking her fingers. I do not want to see men (or women) simulating the sexual act (especially thrusting at a female). It was disgusting and terrible for any families to have to be subjected to without warning.

What is wrong with this world anything goes, just terrible programming for such a big event. bAny way there could be a fine for this kind of stuff, if a normal person acted and gestured that way in public they would be arrested for being a pervert seriously.

And here we go and let it right into the living rooms of millions.

Hello,

I'm trying to understand how and why networks can get away with the crotch grabbing dances, particularly on a public network when it's obvious kids can watch? If a person does similar things in a workplace, they get fired and possibly sued for sexual harassment. I understand cable networks, for pay, can do such, but do your jobs and eliminate the vulgarity on prime tv, especially with kids watching.

Thank you!

I'm writing to object to the lewd half time performance that was allowed to air on live television during the Super Bowl LVII, on 12 February, 2023.

The singer, Rihanna, who led the half-time performance, should never have been allowed to perform on the American People's airwaves. She has a history of explicit and graphically immoral behavior. She included suggestive and lewd actions profane lyrics at the Super Bowl, and was dressed in a suggestively open "jumpsuit" that revealed immoral clothing underneath.

This is scandalous to the thousands of families and children watching the Super Bowl. Above all, it is an affront against God's Law.

I take offense at this scandal, and urge you take immediate action to ban such performances from live TV in the future.

the broadcast of Rihanna's Superbowl halftime show was utterly indecent and grotesquely sexual. Her "costume" featured what appeared as painted breasts. From all angles it was made to look like bare naked breasts of the red color. Yes that color isn't her natural skin tone, but the sexuality of the design can not be denied.

Countless children were exposed to her "breasts" on national TV. Both her choice to violate the law on indecency, and the networks choice to not just broadcast, but focus on her "breasts" are in direct violation of the FCC rules and laws.

I request a full investigation be performed and when both are found guilty, they should be fined a dollar amount that exceeds the largest fine ever levied by the FCC.

I am calling on the FCC to step in to regulate the NFL halftime shows based on Prime time viewing guidelines. The last four years have included indecent (un)beeped words, gestures, and outfits. The halftime shows occur in prime-time viewing hours.

This year, 2023, children were exposed to a repeated crotch-rubbing then finger sniffing/licking of the hand that had rubbed the crutch of a pregnant woman. How do you explain that to children?

FCC. Please do something to stop this! If that means fines to the NFL, then so be it. The fines should be high enough to encourage the NFL to better regulate the artist chosen and pre-approve their planned act is appropriate for family viewing hours.

Description

I have never submitted a complaint like this, but I feel something needs to be done about Rihanna's halftime show display. When she rubbed her vagina and smelled it during her performance, my children asked questions and I had to give some uncomfortable answers. This wouldn't be a big deal if we had been watching a rated R or PG-13 movie on HBO, but I felt the Super Bowl was a safe space and my guard was down.

The Super Bowl is an American tradition and it's basically another family holiday. I shouldn't have to watch someone rub their vagina and smell it during the broadcast. What's next?

Please do something about this; at the very least, massively fine the responsible parties to dissuade them from this kind of lewd act in the future.
